

2nd Saturdays with IAWA Welcomes Frank Lentricchia and Roberto Ragone
at the Cornelia St. Cafe, Saturday, May 10

IAWA . (April 21, 2014)

The Italian American Writers Association (IAWA) presents literary critic and mystery writer Frank Lentricchia and culture maven Roberto Ragone on Saturday, May 10, 2014, at the Cornelia St. Cafe, 29 Cornelia St., Greenwich Village, www.corneliastcafe.com. The reading takes place from 5:45 p.m.

to 7:45 p.m. and kicks off with Open Mic readings of five minutes after which the featured writers take the stage.

Frank Lentricchia [2] is a one of the country's leading literary critics as well as a professor, novelist, and film teacher. He has been called "the Dirty Harry of literary criticism." A chaired professor of literature at Duke University, he is the author of several highly acclaimed and often controversial critical studies. His novels include Johnny Critelli, The Knifemen and The Accidental Pallbearer; and a memoir, The Edge of Night. His latest book, The Dog Killer of Utica [3] belongs to the Eliot Conte Mystery series.

Roberto Ragone [4] [4] is an entrepreneur and arts and culture advocate with 25 years' experience. He served as Executive Director of New York City's Lower East Side Business Improvement District and has organized lectures and massive multimedia presentations and fundraising activities. He has also worked for the New York City Council and the New York City Mayor's Office executing strategies to increase the City's financial commitment to arts and culture. For IAWA, Ragone will perform a dramatization of a speech from Congressman Vito Marcantonio, the seven-time elected Congressman who hailed from East Harlem, once the largest Italian community in the country.

Event kicks off with Open Mic readings of five minutes.
