

IDACO NYC 2018

N. C. (May 21, 2018)

From May 24 until May 27, the Italian dance festival is showcasing various performances celebrating culture, dance, and visual artistry, providing a platform for Italian dancers to connect with artists in New York City.

The IDACO—Italian Dance Connection [2]— festival is May 24-27 at the Baruch Performing Arts Center [3]. This showcase is a collaborative and international, contemporary dance event in its fourth year. IDACO creates an Italian themed, cross-cultural collaboration.

This year, more than 20 dance companies, artists, and filmmakers will be featured. IDACO presents a wide variety of performances which all include a pre-show film by Parcon NYC [4] and access to Gisella Sorrentino's [5] slide-show and photo exhibit. The theme for 2018 is intersection and junction focusing on dialogues between countries. IDACO explains that it wants to “facilitate meeting, joining and crossing distances, creating a zone in between, a shared space for artists of diverse origins where they can have the opportunity to come closer to one another.”

IDACO at the IIC

IDACO is having an opening night event at the Italian Cultural Institute in New York City [6] May 23 at 6pm. There will be a reception, a presentation of the program, a video screening, and a site-specific performance. The refreshments will be provided by I Trulli Restaurant and Avero Limoncello.
